STEWART ON THE VETO POWER.

In the Senate Thursday, Senator Stewart discussed his joint resolution to amend the Constitution by reducing to a simple majority the vote necessary to pass a bill over the President's veto. The simple fact that a large majority, if not all, of the States of the Union require a two-thirds vote of the members of both branches of the Legislature to pass a bill over the Governor's veto, indicates that the people have not given much attention to the proposition of Senator Stewart. To amend the Constitution of the United States the assent of two-thirds of the members of the Senate and House of Representatives must be first obtained, and the amendment must be subsequently ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the States. In the case of the proposed amendment each and every legislative body, to be consistent, should propose an amendment to the State Constitution similar to that proposed by Senator Stewart to the Federal Constitution. A refusal to do this would imply that they had less confidence in the integrity of the Chief Magistrate of the Nation than in the Governor of a State. If the popular will is to be consulted in the matter, and in a Republic, such as we have, it should be, though it has not been in the case of some amendments, it will take several years to determine whether or not the people favor the proposed change.

Senator Stewart claims that our form of government has changed from Democratic simplicity to one-man power, responsive only to the necessity of party and the influence of money. That there are grounds for such charges is a matter for regret, but giving a bare majority of Congress the power to override the President's veto will not benefit the matter materially. Except in very rare instances, one or the other of the great parties has a majority in every legislative body, but seldom a two-thirds majority, and if the veto of a President or Governor is, as Senator Stewart alleges, responsive to the necessities of party, the proposed amendment would not benefit the minority. As well amend the Constitution by giving Congress full power to legislate for the country, without the formality of getting the President's signature to a bill, as to give Congress power to override a veto by a bare majority vote.

DISREPUTABLE PROCEEDINGS.

The Methodist General Conference in session in New York City has elected four Bishops. As many ballots had to be taken as in an ordinary political convention before selections were made, and according to the telegraphic reports, the ministers resorted to some of the tricks of the politicians to secure the election of their favorite candidates. Bishop Merrill, who was inspector of the election said the tellers threw out two votes which had been folded together in such a way as to leave the impression that the voter intended they should fall apart when taken from the hat in which they were deposited. The Bishop also found a double ballot nearly torn in two with the same name on each half of the paper. Some of the delegates denounced this sharp practice, and the conference was uproarious for a while, despite the presiding Bishop's efforts to maintain order

Science has claimed the sponge fishery of the Mediterranean. The native divers who could stay under water not more than two minutes are being driven out by men in regular diving armor, who can work by the hour. A German professor has originated a method of planting cuttings from sponges, and it is being prosecuted with success.

A Findlay, Ohio, dispatch of the 21st inst., says: The people of this vicinity were terrified last night on seeing strange flashes of light in the northern sky assume the shape of a human hand. The appearance lasted an hour. The first finger of the hand seemed to point at the sleeping city, while blood seemed to drip from all the fingers.

The Detroit Free Press has estimated the number of men employed at iron mining in the Lake Superior basin at 150,000. Wages were reduced from 5 to 10 per cent. on February 1st. Miners get $1 65 a day.

It is said that General Sheridan's illness was caused by paralysis or apoplexy, and was much more serious than represented. It is the second time he has been so affected. He is slowly recovering.

The Supreme Court of New South Wales has granted writs of habeas corpus to Chinamen offering poll tax, and has also ordered their release, on the ground that the government has no power to exclude foreigners from the country.

The switchmen of the Southern Pacific are on a strike at Los Angeles, and no freight cars are being moved.
